Xmas Spirit

More than 1,000 bells of the 360 Catholic churches in Rome will peal for 10 minutes when Pope Pius on Christmas Eve marking the beginning of the 1960 Holy Year. Masses will be offered in all the churches between 11:30 a.m. and noon.

An all-woman prisoner revue, is scheduled for Los Angeles jail house Christmas Eve, the first of its kind. Jailhouse Jollies will feature carols, pantomime, and assorted song and dance acts. The girls are quite anxious to take the show on the road. And understandably so!

Of People, Things

Busts of Premier Josef Stalin have been placed on 38 of the highest peaks of Central Asia, Moscow radio reported today.

Naval sources in Washington say Adm. Louis Denfield, ousted chief of naval operations, will retire next month and take a lucrative job with a private business concern. Denfield was removed from the navy's top spot because of his part in the "admiral's revolt" against unification of the U.S. armed forces.

Bill Barnes ... Light in the night. Punjab University in Pakistan today conferred honorary degrees on two distinguished North Americans, Dr. Cyril James McGill University in Montreal was made a doctor of laws, and Dr. Arthur H. Compton of St. Louis a doctor of sciences.

Guy Marcheret and Jacques Deschamps convicted in Paris recently for serving the Nazi gestapo in wartime, were executed for treason today, crying "Heil Hitler" as they went before the firing line.

Miscellany

A statewide automobile sales racket believed to have defrauded Michigan of an estimated two million dollars in sales tax this year, was reported by state police today. Seven persons have been arrested as far as police continue investigations begun eight weeks ago.

A British trade union leader says the rapid spread of television is hampering the setting up of an adequate telephone service in Britain. Douglas Coward said public demand for television is making inroads on raw materials sorely needed to meet telephone needs.

The will of novelist Rex Beach leaves one ninth of his "more than $100,000 estate" to Notre Dame College at Wilcox, N.J. Beach once did a lengthy article on the college for a leading U.S. magazine.

A fractured vertebra and four months in a heavy cast haven't dulled the sense of humor of U.S. army recruit William Barnes, 17, at Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco. Barnes painted a shirt and how tie in phosphorescent paint on his cast. They have a bright glow at night.

Europe's Christmas Due To Be Merrier

Food and Toys More Plentiful Than in Any Year Since War

LONDON, Dec. 20.—(CP)—Western Europe is due for the merriest Christmas since the war.

Food rationing has practically disappeared, except in Britain, Scandinavia and the Netherlands. But "pocket-book rationing" has taken its place.

QUICKIES—By Ken Reynolds
Britain, despite the lurking shadow of austerity, is making a brave show of donning the traditional festive spirit. The quality of rationed foods have been raised somewhat during the last year, and there are special allowances for Christmas.

Food Minister John Strachey promised a "limited quantity" of pork, hitherto almost unobtainable. His office added there will be far more turkey than last year. Poultry is on free sale, but expensive.

In London's Trafalgar Square, a towering Christmas tree, annual gift from Norway since the war, lit up every night.

In France, Italy, Belgium, Sweden and Western Germany, even the few rationed items are plentifully available on more-or-less legal "free markets."

Norway, like Britain, still rationed meat, butter, margarine, eggs, sugar and coffee. But special Christmas allowances will be enough for old-fashioned feasts.

Italians are looking forward to a boost in their economy from Holy Year, which will help pay for their unrationed but expensive Christmas cheer. The first groups of pilgrims are already on their way.

West Germans will enjoy their happiest Christmas since the war—despite high prices and relatively low wages. This year there will be more to eat and drink, and an abundant selection of toys.

Five Calgary Theatres Close Over Dispute

CALGARY, Dec. 20.—(CP)—Theatregoers in Calgary have seven theatres to choose from today. Operators of five suburban movie houses closed indefinitely today, protesting local Protectionist Union (AFL) refusal to accept an arbitration award.

An arbitration board Aug. 29 recommended a 35-per-cent wage increase, $12.50 a week cost-of-living bonus and the reduction of the present 10-man projection room staff to one man.

Theatre operators accepted the proposal, but union men rejected it because of its provision that one man instead of two be employed on each working shift.

Initial emphasis in standardization will be placed on tactics and weapons, used by ground troops. Ammunition, small arms, tanks, artillery, anti-aircraft guns and communications equipment will be included in this category.

Airplanes and naval vessels were mentioned for possible inclusion later. In fact, the tripartite agreement can apply to all munitions, except atomic weapons and intelligence equipment such as coding devices.

Observers of the three countries already have been sitting in on the others' work in guided missiles.

LOVE! WHERE IS IT STING?

PARIS, Dec. 20.—(Hester)—Love is 37 times more deadly than alcohol as a motive for suicide according to statistics published yesterday by the Municipal Bulletin of Geneva.

A survey of suicides in the area in July, the Bulletin said, showed 17 took their lives because of "love worries," while only one was deemed due to drunkenness.

City Oil Rights Safe Says Gov't

Mr. Garfield pointed out that he will be at least 20 or 30 meetings of this committee," he said.

PRESENT SITUATION
Mr. Garfield pointed out that according to an existing court ruling, the city gets, and retains, mineral rights to taxable lands and now holds about 75 per cent of these rights.

Other points "disturbing to Edmontonians" proposed in the new contract:

- 1.—Assessment uniformly, which would deprive home owners of the 10 per cent differential they enjoy over commercial property;
- 2.—Definition changes in "lands" and "buildings";
- 3.—Omission of unit rate system of local improvement;
- 4.—Changes in tax exemptions;
- 5.—Change in system of tax sales of lands;
- 6.—More complicated civic election procedure;
- 7.—Change in qualifications for elected city officials;
- 8.—Change in powers of council;
- 9.—Omission of special agreements on gas and Macdonald hotel.

Bergman Offers Terms To Hubby

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 20.—(UP)—Screen star Ingrid Bergman's at 1949 husband, said today, a proposed property settlement has been submitted to the Swedish husband, Dr. Peter Lindstrom.

Miss Bergman, now in Italy, announced she plans to marry director Roberto Rossellini when she gets a divorce from Lindstrom.

Hubster refused to reveal terms offered or who would get custody of the couple's 13-year-old daughter, Pia.

2nd Wheat Cut To Buy Lumber

worth of lumber from Canada this year.

If negotiations are completed along the wheat-lumber line, it is understood the salmon and lumber contracts both would go to the Pacific coast provinces.

Canada, it is learned, favors the wheat-lumber plan, and expects to have little trouble selling the 15,000,000 bushels during the current crop year.

The government is believed to feel that Canadian wheat growers would gain rather than lose if the deal goes through. A clause in the proposed agreement would provide that the U.S. accept 15,000,000 bushels during the 1950-51 crop year at 1949-50 prices—$2 a bushel for soft wheat and $3.50 for hard.

SHAGS DEVELOP
At Anglo-Canadian negotiations, the wheat-lumber deal, the Canadian government hit two snags in negotiating cheese and bacon contracts.

One of the snags was price support and the other was the Geneva trade pact.

Both cheese and bacon producers are asking that the government introduce floor prices on 1950 production if contracts are completed at lower than current prices.

Canada sold the U.K. bacon for $30 a hundredweight in 1949 and cheese at 30 cents a pound. Britain is asking for 1950 prices of $35 a hundredweight for bacon and 25 cents a pound for cheese.

NO DUMPING
It is understood the cabinet is not completely in favor of price support for cheese and bacon. This would amount to a few million dollars and might leave the cabinet wide open for price-support requests for other products.

The other difficulty, the Geneva Pact, prevents signatories nations from "dumping" products on other member nations.

It specifies that a country cannot subsidize its exports if the subsidy works against "fair competition from other sources of supply, unless the product is subsidized to the same extent on the domestic market.

The government therefore could not buy up stocks of bacon and cheese, sell them at a low price on the foreign market and absorb any loss without allowing the domestic price to fall to the same level as the export price.

MOVIE ACTRESS Gloria De Haven, 34, has revived divorce suit against actor John Payne that was pending since September 1948. She dropped action in spring after property settlement was reached. Reconciliation ended October 26, she said yesterday when asking to reinstate suit.

Air Line Talks Near Agreement

OTTAWA, Dec. 20.—(UP)—There has been a "general air of agreement" between Canadian and American officials during current air talks centering on the equitable over the profitable Montreal-New York route. It was learned today.

The talks should wind up today, 6 sources said. An official statement then may be issued. The talks developed after Canada's Air Transport Board threatened to cancel Colonial Airlines licence to operate in Canada.

Frozen Sleep Enables Repair of Bad Hearts

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—(AP)—The use of frozen sleep to stop dog's hearts long enough for surgical repairs otherwise impossible was described in a report received here today from the University of Toronto.

As a result, a promising new step in mending bad human hearts is foreseen by American doctors.

Frozen sleep is unconsciousness that comes when the temperature of the entire body is dropped a little below 90 degrees Fahrenheit. Human beings have been kept unconscious for days in this way with no bad effects.

For surgery on hearts, bristly unconsciousness is enough. This chilling slows down all reactions. The heart beats more slowly. But more important, the need for rapid supply of oxygen drops and a slower rate keeps a person alive.

The dog experiments were done at University of Toronto by a team headed by Dr. W. G. Bigelow.

Pensions Probe Is Suggested

Security Plan Recommended By Albertans

Alberta Pensioners' Society at annual meeting in Moose Temple last night urged government investigation of all pension and superannuation plans as a basis for a national security plan for all Canadians.

Well-placed homes, having hospital facilities should be established in various parts of Canada for care of needy and old age pensioners by municipal, provincial and Dominion governments, the meeting urged.

Edward C. Fisher was re-elected president of the society for the sixth consecutive term. Other officers are: C. W. Lee, first vice-president; Allan Macdonald, Thomas E. Dwyer and Hugh Decker, vice-presidents; D. M. Foster, treasurer and T. J. Higgins, secretary.

Christmas Spirit Symbol to Blind

Christmas carols and all the hustle-bustle of the Yuletide season are a yearly living symbol to the blind in Edmonton.

Most important to the blind near Christmas time is the feeling of friendship and kindness towards fellow man.

This feeling of comradeship prevailed last night at the 38th annual Christmas dinner and party at Canadian National Institute for the Blind. The sense of belonging was very strong, as members celebrated the first Christmas in their new building.

The program was prepared by Duke of Edinburgh Chapter 1038 and Maple Leaf Rotabach Lodge.

BLIND PIANIST

The blind then showed resourcefulness in assisting with the program. Walter Scroones played several piano arrangements, while W. Milne gave a talk.

They joined in community singing of favorite carols and modern tunes.

Mrs. M. Christopherson expressed the thought that the new CNIB building was the "perfect expression of love".

Norman Gale and Walter Scroones, each living at home with families, told of the close feeling of the blind in the Yuletide season.

Bliss Lacey said, "Christmas is the time of the year when he blind can get together and enjoy the season like any normal person."

15 WANT TO BE CHIEF

When applications from Edmontonians for position of fire chief closed today, city commissioners had 15 bids.

If no suitable applicant is found from among them, commissioners will go through the bids they expect will result from the advertising campaign in other cities.

Artificial Ice Making

Installation of the only artificial ice manufacturing plant west of Winnipeg will be completed for Arctic Ice Company here by the end of May.

F. K. Griffin, manager, said today that plant production would be about 80 tons a day.

The new unit, costing $175,000, will turn out 300-pound blocks of ice which are stored into smaller blocks.

City water will be used in the new ice plant, Mr. Griffin said, and for company it will mean end of river ice cutting.

THIS IS Postman D. P. Ramsay's 43rd year with department and his beloved Christmas. But Ramsay, who lives at 11226 69th street, doesn't mind. He is looking forward to retirement in spring.

25-Year Limit Needed For Fighting Efficiency

Continuing efficiency of Edmonton's fire department requires a maximum recruitment age of 35 years, Mayor Sid Parsons said today, answering a demand from Montgomery Branch Canadian Legion, that age limit be raised to 30 years, to enable Second Great War veterans to join the department.

Because fire fighting calls for men in top physical shape, the mayor said, it is difficult to recruit at 60 instead of the present 35 years.

"I'd be glad to see all veterans eligible for the 35 jobs now open, provided we could keep continued efficiency in the department, not just while I'm mayor, but for all the future," said Mayor Parsons.

The 25-year age limit is not new, he said.

It has, to my knowledge, always been in effect, although during the war and immediately afterward, it may have been violated," he said.

Mayor Parsons said acting City Comptroller Fred Ockenden had told him that to retire fire fighters at 60 instead of the present 35 would call for a 40 per cent boost in the city's share of pensions.

Plant Workers Given Hampers

Over 700 children and 3,000 employees of Canada Packers Limited attended a Christmas party in the Sales Pavilion Sunday afternoon.

S. F. McDougall, staff manager, offered season's greetings to office and plant workers.

A choral group of 25 employees sang carols, and later on the program, tips, reception and solo.

Santa Claus presented Christmas stockings to the children, and hampers to employees.

Pamphlets Detail Welfare Work

First of a series of pamphlets describing public welfare in Alberta is now being distributed by Alberta public welfare department.

The first issue deals with Alberta's rehabilitation of the blind, and describes the home health and education facilities of the various Meis colonies here.

The pamphlet is illustrated with photographs of Meis colonies, taken by the provincial economics affairs photographers.

Building Conformity

Architectural conformity necessary for good town planning will be enforced in new housing development of Edmonton by an "overall board" set up by city commissioners, Mayor Sid Parsons said today.

The action follows complaints about non-conforming houses being built in Windsor Park and Capital Hill districts.

The board is composed of Commissioner John Hodgson, Assessor and Tax Collector J. A. Macdonald, Acting City Architect and Building Inspector Robert Duke, and City Planner Noel Dault.

It will recommend policy for housing in new areas which is consistent with good town planning practice, and may even go so far as to suggest ranges for lots, said the mayor.

Mechanization Causes Jobless

Mechanization of Alberta farms is blamed by vice-president Carl Berg of the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress for increased unemployment in Edmonton and other cities.

Mr. Berg said: "The farmer scarcely needs more than one hired man, usually the eldest son. The other boys in the family flock to the cities for jobs. Not so many years ago the farms were our best source of employment."

Mr. Berg said that Edmonton is suffering particularly at this time because so many men are attracted here by oil field and other developments.

Nominations For Labor Council

Officers for Edmonton Trades and Labor Council in 1950 will be nominated at a meeting on the third Monday in January. Elections will be held at the first meeting in February.

This was announced by secretary Herbert G. Turner at a meeting in the Trades and Labor Temple last night.

Links With the Past

The announcement by the Northern Alberta Old Timers Association that the old Fort Edmonton will be rebuilt on its original site near the legislative buildings is an important piece of news about a project that should have the cordial and zealous support of the entire community.

The restoration of this and other historical landmarks, in our opinion, should be a major item on Edmonton's development program.

It is no easy feat for the history of a city to be lost.

It is so easy for a younger generation to come to regard the dwindling band of pioneers as a group of tiresome old men and women insisting upon living in the past.

It is easy for them to forget that the spirit and courage and enterprise of the pioneers is this community's most priceless asset and that without the foundation laid by those early-comers there would be no city at all.

A city without a past, we think, is a city without a future.

Certainly there can be little civic pride without a well-established and well-remembered civic tradition.

And the qualities that went into the foundation of Edmonton are the very same qualities that are required most desperately today in its period of sudden expansion.

The history of Edmonton is a rather brave and glorious thing.

But it is in grave danger of being forgotten.

This gallant story of determination and fortitude and endurance is threatened with extinction because the young people of Edmonton have so few symbols to keep those things alive in their minds and hearts.

Every community that rises to greatness carries a tradition along with it.

Such landmarks as the old Fort are symbols of this tradition and of its preservation and restoration are not steps looking fruitlessly into the past, but steps looking hopefully into the future.

No Permanency in Economic System

A paradox of no mean proportions is the spectacle of the Canadian government reluctantly making ready for a renewed bout of monopoly when the young people of this government are going all out to create as many state-owned monopolies as possible.

For nationalized industries, no matter what disguise they adopt, are nothing more or less than monopolies in their most vicious and restrictive form.

In an address delivered a few days ago to a Montreal audience, Mr. R. B. Callard, of the McGill faculty of political science, took time out to make a few timely criticisms of Britain's nationwide monopolies, otherwise known as nationalized industries.

Profits from nationalized industries—Mr. Callard points out—don't necessarily mean efficient operation, because with the disappearance of competition in the market, there remains no yardstick with which to measure economic usefulness of the operation.

"Profits on nationalized industries might mean that too high a price was being charged for the commodity."

Another weakness of the "nationalized monopoly" as opposed to the free enterprise system lies in the lack of any guiding factor influencing the amount of new investment to be undertaken.

"The government," Mr. Callard declares—"cannot go to the stock exchange for private funds. Rather, some official must make an arbitrary decision as to the amount of the investment to be undertaken."

It is a pity that the speaker should have chosen to undermine the validity of his own arguments by stating somewhat pessimistically that "at least, all the professional planners and socialists, can afford to be complacent about the permanence of their cherished notions about the economic system."

After what happened in New Zealand and Australia, not to mention the First World War, it is not surprising that professional planners and socialists, can afford to be complacent about the permanence of their cherished notions about the economic system.

Means Test and Old Age Pension

The means test must remain in Canada's old age pensions, says Health Minister Paul Martin, until the contributory pension is established.

In that case, what is delaying the establishment of the contributory pension? It is true, as Mr. Martin says, that Canada's means test is most liberal and that no country has ever abolished the means test.

It is true, as he has hitherto pointed out, that the abolition of the means test would involve a considerable increase in the Canadian taxpayer's contribution to the old age pension fund.

But it is also true that the means test is an iniquitous and despicable practice because an aged man or woman must virtually assume the position of a pauper before qualifying for a pension that should be purchased right of every individual in the state.

be the purchased right of every individual in the state.

It is a pity that the speaker should have chosen to undermine the validity of his own arguments by stating somewhat pessimistically that "at least, all the professional planners and socialists, can afford to be complacent about the permanence of their cherished notions about the economic system."

Christmas Tree Trimming Always Starts a Fight

It is a strange thing that the celebration of the birthday of the Prince of Peace usually precipitates a first class family row, in many households, over the trimming of the Christmas tree.

Christmas tree trimming is something upon which most people have fixed and firm opinions.

And there are many definite schools of thought in the matter.

There are those who maintain, for instance, that a tree should be of such size as to require a special seasonal hole in the ceiling with spreading brackets and a special arrangement of the Christmas tree.

Letters to the Editor

affair—would it not be better to spend a little of this wasted effort that the Ministers of Canada's go forth into making Sunday a drugstore, into a fight against our real enemy—sex and divorce?

David Bruce (Piper) Macdonald 13055 St. George

Overseeping At Christmas

Editor, Bulletin—It is interesting to read that in addressing a Kiwanis meeting recently, a citizenry touched on what I call a "sin" of the Christmas season.

It is the sin of oversleeping. I am sure that too many people are spending too much on those who have already had their share of the Christmas spirit.

Many women with small means spend far more than they can afford because they have not the moral courage to limit their "giving" to their immediate families.

It is a pity that the speaker should have chosen to undermine the validity of his own arguments by stating somewhat pessimistically that "at least, all the professional planners and socialists, can afford to be complacent about the permanence of their cherished notions about the economic system."

After what happened in New Zealand and Australia, not to mention the First World War, it is not surprising that professional planners and socialists, can afford to be complacent about the permanence of their cherished notions about the economic system.

Injuries Are Blamed For Thefts

Two injured workmen were granted a two-weeks' remand for sentence and allowed to go free on their own bond when they appeared in police court yesterday to face three charges of theft.

The two men, Rene Bess and Emil Bolster, told police they had never been in trouble before and had stolen goods because recent injuries had put them out of work.

Glenn, an auto body apprentice, recently injured his hand. Bolster, a carpenter, lost three fingers in a planer, and is receiving workmen's compensation.

The men pleaded guilty to stealing a spotlight from a motorboat at Alberta Motorboat Company, 1215-16th avenue, a sun visor off a parked car and four gallons of anti-freeze from a car parked at West End Motel. The thefts occurred during November.

The men were advised to make restitution.

But if you are out that way and are then hastily scraping loose bits of grass and twigs, and even snow, into their caves, it's suggested you bottom up your overcoat.

The keepers say such actions are a sure sign of colder things to come.

Panic Is Averted In Hog Industry

Wheat Action Offers Assurance to Producers

Action of the federal government in deferring delivery of $20,000,000 worth of Canadian wheat to Britain, in order to provide that amount at the beginning of 1950 for the purchase of Canadian bacon, has given some badly needed assurance to hog producers, Hugh W. Allen, president of Alberta Livestock Co-operative Ltd., said today.

While it is true that there will apparently be a reduction in the price paid the producer for his hogs, there will be no panicky collapse of hog prices, such as has been forecast by purveyors of gloomy gossip, he said.

FLOOR PRICE

With a virtual floor price to be soon established through the disposal of surplus products to Britain, and with a little sensible co-operation from the processing industry, there should be some hope that the 1949 Canadian hog crop may be disposed of at reasonable prices, he continued.

Because 1949 production costs had reached the highest level of this decade, it was essential, if the industry was not to be totally disappointed that this reasonable price should be secured for 1949 production, more especially that part of it which would not reach the market until after the New Year.

BRUN, it's cold outside! With snow-covered paws and frosty nose, Belina, brown bear at Edmonton Zoo surveys wintry scene. Bears in captivity don't hibernate, as is popularly believed, but remain awake to feed regularly. Sully anxiously peers about in background.

Wild Brothers All in Bed, Bears Here Look For Santa

By Hugh Dempsey
Bulletin Staff Writer
If you think that every respectable bear has settled down for that long winter nap, you're all wrong.

When Mr. Bruin gets a taste of man's civilization, he forgets the bare facts of bear hibernation. He sticks his bristly snout out of his warm, man-made cave for an hour or so, each day, and freshens up. Sully and Belina take things pretty easy in the winter, though. They keep to their concrete caves most of the time, venturing out in the snow for an hour or so a day.

Classrooms Extend To Other Continents

An Alberta school whose classrooms extend to several continents has published its first "year book".
Named "The Correspondent", the booklet is published and printed at the department of education correspondence school branch at Edmonton. It contains the contributions of dozens of correspondence school pupils in isolated parts of Canada, the West Indies and Africa.
A high school student in Bermuda writes his description of a hurricane which struck his home last year; a grade seven student in Bermuda describes life of head hunters in the African territory; a grade eight student, now living at Brooks, recalls his life in a concentration camp in Germany and a lighthouse keeper's son writes from Lennard Island, B.C.
Alberta students have contributed accounts of their own lives in isolated sections of the country. A grade five student recalled how he drove his mother to safety when Northern Alberta forest fires threatened their home. Junior high school students described the Hitlerite colony in which they live.

Wallet Theft
Loss Is $550

Police are investigating theft of $550 reported by John Doyle, 10016-21st street.

Doyle said police the theft of his wallet containing $750 was discovered following a party at his boarding house. The wallet had been placed in a bureau drawer, he said.

Holiday Hampers Fill Xmas Spirit Message

By Ben Thrifty

Weeping heartfelt of Christmas spirit can be reflected in the personal attention of gift-giving, card-sending, entertaining, without undue strain to the pocket book . . . or the imagination.

Christmas bounty in the form of goodies to eat comes as a welcome gift from the homemaker who's proud of her kitchen craft.

Tasty touches of Yuletide yumminess carries the personalized stamp of fellowship and goodwill. Also . . . it's an inexpensive way to tell your friends and neighbors "Merry Christmas."

Top honors go to the donor who pays particular attention to special likes 'n' dislikes of gift-receiver.

For the friend who prides herself on her Bohemian-style cooking, a hot-baked loaf of scones would be the punctuation of perfection on "Merry Christmas from our house to your house."

Include a jar of celery salt, garlic salt, onion salt, herbs, flavoring monosodium glutamate.

Bundle each in bright tissue paper and stickers, then tie into red-checked napkin and sling on a stick-hold fashion.

She'll praise you anew for your ingenuity and interest in her interests.

Another gem for the young couple who both work all day and like it . . . is a basket containing a quick 'n' easy supper. A tin of tuna fish, biscuit mix, tin of cream of celery soup . . . adds up to a tasty casserole.

Tin of fruit cocktail and assortment of Christmas goodies fills out the basket spots.

Nestle the packages in a small bread-basket lined with bright paper napkins. A few pine cones tucked either side will add to the festive appearance.

Perfume shopping for that extra-special someone should be one important occasion when the "more homes."

As a matter of fact . . . you'll be wise to avoid setting strong-flavored food before you start "sniffing." And smoking is another way to dull your sense of smell.

Best way to test perfume is to dab a drop on your palm; rub hands together until alcohol evaporates . . . then breathe in. Now you'll know what's what.

A word from the wive gives us a healthy little chat about the new quick-freeze orange juice.

Tests have been made with the strength-packed net and results show higher vitamin C values than fresh juice.

This is explained by pointing out that manufacturers quick-freeze fruit picked at its peak . . . and the process is ended too at its peak.

Most tests showed no significant loss of vitamin C is evident up to three days after the container is diluted and refrigerated.

An interesting bit of info what!

YOUR BABY AND MINE

Natural Selfishness Is Common to Children

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Soon now, when every child is going to have more toys than he can play with, any display of selfishness seems rather unusual.

Parents will note that very young children have little sense of possessiveness. They give up their toys without a struggle. Not so the child of two or three.

He looks upon every approaching child with suspicion. Does he want his toy? He clutches them to his breast, snatching up everything he has and hovering over them like a broody hen. Even if he cannot possibly play with all of his toys, he cannot be persuaded to part with one of them.

This is natural behavior, except to the child who has learned that he can play companionship by parting with his treasures. Unusually, he comes easier to him than to the child who is popular to motherly he acts. Selfishness is natural because the child has to develop a sense of property. He has to feel the importance of what is his in order to learn to respect what is due to another.

Once he feels confident that no one will force him to take from him what he considers to be his, he will be ready to share his possessions with others. He will have to be assured that he will not lose what he gives up to the toy in his hoarding and will be picked up at the time limit for sharing.

Children should be made aware that when they share with other children, inevitably they get something in return. They must see the profit in their unselfishness, for

WHEN YOU do a deep knee bend, do you get creaking noises? It's probably nothing to be alarmed about but exercise may help you overcome it.

WHY GROW OLD

Creaking Joints Not Sign of Disintegration

By Josephine Lowman

This column is about creaking joints. If you are 30 to 35 you had better think at least once before you say you never had one, because if you haven't had one, it may mean that you have never given yourself the opportunity of finding out what has happened to you.

Of course it may mean that you were blessed with a wonderful constitution, have lived and eaten sensibly and have not been exposed to any special strains.

Maybe it is better to sit in a rocking chair and hear only the creak of the chair, and maybe it is better never to give your feet a bit of real emotion, which often causes lines, but maybe it would be better to laugh a lot and even cry a little, to be active in exercise, rather than kid yourself.

I had my first sore joint at the age of 30. It scared me to death. I thought, "I am falling to pieces at this early age." Then I fortunately came in contact with a very wise doctor. He said, "Practically all physically mature persons have trouble of this sort come in a while."

I have found that my right shoulder is a definite barometer of my physical condition. If I exercise enough, if I sleep enough, if I eat correctly, if I do not try to do too much, years pass without any discomfort. But let me join the gun with which it is too complex, and that arm warns me in no uncertain terms.

I am no physician. I speak only out of personal and practical experience. If you have a sore joint you should see a physician but you should not let it throw you into a neurosis!

Do deep knee bends (with your back straight) and listen to your knees. You may be surprised by the fireworks! Ask your doctor if you can keep on doing them. Every case is individual but I cannot help feeling that many women age prematurely because of nervous and emotional strain and lack of physical activity.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS

Women Aren't Only Marriage Parasites

DEAR MISS DIX: In regard to women's rights to propose marriage to men, haven't women always picked their husbands? Isn't woman's love more material than man's?

Do you ever hear of men selling themselves to girls for the sake of luxury and good times? Haven't men always asked that they loved more than women? Haven't men always written all the songs, poems and stories about love? Isn't it women who are the parasites in marriage?

JOSEPH. ANSWER: Well, Joseph, giving women the right to propose the question to man doesn't compel him to marry her. He can always say

Personally, I think that men have a better chance to escape marriage when women persecute them in the open than they have when it is done by stealth and under cover.

Perhaps women do marry offener for position and money than men do, but that was a necessity forced upon them in the past by their inability to get the comforts of life in any other way.

MEN ALSO GUILTY

But if you think men are indifferent to such sordid considerations as a bank account, you are vastly mistaken.

Every well-to-do widow can tell you that the line forms on the right side of the men who want to share in her insurance money and hang their bare backs permanently in her front hall.

Now can you substantiate your theory that men love better than women do. You know what the poet says: "A man's love is of many life a thing apart, 'is

Battle Of Bulge Triples Industry For Corsettes

OTTAWA, Dec. 20.—(CP)—The persistent battle of the Bulge has more than tripled the output of Canadian corset industry in the last 10 days.

Dedicated to keeping women in good form, the industry has tripled its output of 150,000 pairs of corsets, girdles, brassieres and "diaper" articles in 10 days.

Figures for the year were released today by the Department of Statistics, which attributed a boost of other figures about what Canadian women are doing to maintain or regain their figures.

For instance, back in 1939 the industry managed to produce 482,700 pairs of the items designed to prevent undue stress.

Since then the yearly increase has been generally uniform. The increase to 1,364,000 from 1941 to 1943 was about average.

But the industry's output in the last 10 days has tripled its output of 150,000 pairs of corsets, girdles, brassieres and "diaper" articles in 10 days.

Tantrum Department Had Many Big Stars

Scene: The Stork Club, New York.

Time: 2:30 a.m.

"What I can't understand," said a theatre manager, "is why nine actors out of 10 have a yen to bowl out the audience."

"You get sucker-ore," said an actor.

"You get what?" I asked.

"Sucker-ore," repeated the actor. "Night after night you see them gawking at you as though you were a luscious lady or a two-headed calf. Remember the case of the circus giant?"

"There wasn't much to it," said the actor. "The giant got off his platform one night and started beating up a guy in the crowd. No one special, you understand—just a guy. When they finally calmed the giant down, all he said was, 'I just got sucker-ore.'"

"You know how nice a gal Jane Crowl is," said a press agent. "Well, in London she once held up a show until a muley guy in a hot suit went up and spoiled for the whole crowd."

"The best audience having out of all," said the manager, "was the one that Henry Miller..."

"You said," I said.

"John Barrymore was a dilly at it," interrupted the actor. "Of course, you all know about the time when the audience was coughing too much, and he threw a fish into the fifth row and said, 'Share this among you, you sucker-ore.'"

"It was in Pittsburgh," said the manager. "That Miller once..."

"How about the Englishman who was playing 'Hamlet'?" said the press agent, "and didn't like the way the audience was sitting on his hands. The one who started playing back with the growing boy, and then he said for..."

"The manager tried again. "Once Henry Miller..."

"Richard Bennett topped them all in the tantrum department," said the actor. "One night in Atlanta he said, 'I'm Henry Miller, and he stepped down from the footlights and said, 'When the engineer finishes playing blowholes and takes care of the plumbing, I will return.' And he came back and glowered until the racket stopped."

ANOTHER TRY

"When Henry Miller..." I began.

"This time," I said, "let him tell..."

"When Henry Miller opened in 'The Great Divide,' the first tour was in Pittsburgh and Henry got plenty sour when the critics panned the play and accused him of hawking it up. In New York, however, the play was a smash and ran for two seasons."

"When the show went on tour the first stand perched in by the booking office was in Pittsburgh, but this time the critics reversed themselves and said both Miller and the play were fine."

"One night in the middle of his big low scene with Margaret Anglin, Henry noticed that several customers were sneaking up the aisle and making for the exit."

"Get back to your seats," he yelled. "The last time I played this overrated mangle, I was insulted and I don't propose to let it happen again!"

"The people went back to their seats and the play went on, but a few seconds later another bunch got up and began to make for the exit. This time Miller almost threw a fit."

"Knives and knives," he screamed. "Back to your seats!"

"Margaret Anglin grabbed him by the sleeve. 'Stop acting like a jackass, Henry,' she said. 'The theatre's on fire.'"

Newly Puzzled On Traffic Light

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Dec. 20. — (CP)—Newfoundland's new traffic light is in the new again.

There is some controversy among motorists—unaccustomed to the automatic light—as to whether they are allowed to move when the light shows amber.

Until recently the light—mounted on a post at the intersection of Hawley Cross—was operated manually by a policeman in a small booth. Periodically it was knocked over by careless motorists.

Mother Goose Is Rewritten

LONDON, Dec. 20.—(AP)—A new version of Mother Goose, with the manuscript missing, hit the British stage yesterday with a blaze of light.

The once blind mule can see as well as you can. Maybe better: Little Miss Muffet greets the mule like a long lost buddy.

Humpty Dumpty's together again. Old Mother Hubbard finds a bone for her dog. Jack and Jill get away without a skull fracture, and all this for sixpence.

OLD FOR NEW

The book, called "Old Rhymes for New," is the brain child of a Manchester business man, Geoffrey Hall.

When he was little they used to scare him blue with some of those rough old rhymes. For instance: "The mail was in the garden, hanging out her clothes, when down came a blackbird and pecked off her nose."

When he grew up, Hall decided to change all this with a complete rewrite of Mother Goose. With a friend, Arthur Thompson, he has put £5,000 in the project.

"This time," I said, "let him tell..."

ARDENT LOVER GETS LUMPS THE HARD WAY

TORONTO, Dec. 20.—(AP)—Arthur Naylor, 21, in hospital today with fractured skull, is pondering the dangers of love.

His spirits undampened when a girl he was attempting to woo refused to admit him to her home, Naylor took off his shoes and began to climb to a roof beneath the girl's window.

She called the landlord. A struggle followed and the landlord is alleged to have hit Naylor on the head with one of his own shoes.

Little Hope Held For Man

BLAIRMORE, Alta., Dec. 20.—(CP)—Heavy miners, working in 34-man shifts, after 72 hours of digging through tons of coal and rock today had still not recovered the body of their fellow miner Ben Carter, 69-year-old father of five.

Carter was buried in a cave-in Friday night when Mike Kwiatkowski, 25, whose body was found shortly after.

Miners officials held little hope of finding Carter alive. Miners however, continued to drive a crosscut through the "room" in which the cave-in occurred. All other mining activity has ceased.

Blairmore is a mountainous, coal-mining town, 30 miles west of Lethbridge in southwestern Alberta.
